RITA/BTS, in partnership with the National States Geographic Information Council, sponsored a strategic planning effort for the Transportation for the Nation (TFTN) initiative. TFTN refers to the goal of coordinating, developing, and distributing nationally significant transportation data, with particular emphasis on road centerlines. This strategic planning effort was recently completed and included reaching out to stakeholders from all levels of government and the private sector to gather their input on how TFTN should proceed. This presentation will describe the results of the planning effort with an emphasis on the recommendations that were made and the next steps that were suggested.
